

Trapped Inside

Chapter 1

Ann never really enjoys those counseling sessions in her room, she never understood why the school board has the counselor come into every room to see how the girls are doing. Ever since her parents died from that disease, her aunt sent her to this dumb boarding school, never really visited her since. She always blames herself for her parent's death, she was there but she couldn't do anything to stop what happened, she should have never brought them to the hospital. The counselor always asks to the much personal question, if she even tries to say something her roommate would use it to bully her more. When the counselor asked her if she doesn't have anything to say all she does is smile, and say everything is fine. The next day when Ann woke up she went to the bathroom to take a shower and wash her hair. After washing her hair when she looked in the mirror her hair was red. Her roommates replace her shampoo with red hair dye.

Ann ran to her only friend to cry. Her friend Lisa went to the room with Ann to defend her "leave Ann alone she hasn't done anything to you guys, why do all of you find pleasure in torturing her?" Ann went into the room and put her clothes on. She laid down on the bed listening to the laughter of her roommates.

The next day the counselor came into their room and asks Ann the same question she always does every day "do you have anything to say, Ann? Ann always does the same thing she does every time, she smiles and says everything is okay. Everybody that sees Ann always sees her with a smile on her face. She never loses that smile. She gets bullied every day in the school but she is always smiling: it's like her mouth is sewed in a shape of a smile. He part of the room is full of death metal band posters. She never talks to anybody; she never even talks to her two roommates. In the school everybody stays away from her, only Lisa stays by her sides no matter what happens. Lisa always walks her to class, sits with her, and try to keep her happy.

When her mother first got sick she brought her to the hospital but her mother just got worst. After her father caught the same disease too, she brought him to the hospital, but just like her mother he got worst, and within a week they both died. She never stops blaming herself she should have never brought them to the hospital, she believes that it's not the disease that killed her parents it's whatever they gave them in the hospital. She should have never brought them to the hospital.

She also blames the death of her older brother and younger sister on herself. She was there in the car when they got into the car accident, and when they died in the hospital. She was there when her siblings died, and also she was there when her parents died. She always asks herself why does everybody around her die?

Early morning one of Ann's roommates got really sick she couldn't breathe so Ann called the nurse, she watches the ambulance took her roommate just like they took her parents. Later that day her roommate was back from the hospital. She said she was ok but she was worse than before. That same night her roommate died. She didn't really know how to cope with the idea that she had to be around death again.

Ann woke up the next morning to the sound of the door knocking' one of her roommates opens the door, it was the counselor for another session. She didn't feel like talking. She never told anybody about the deaths in her family except for Lisa or how the death of her roommate affects her. Lisa has been a good friend to Ann ever since the first day Ann came to the school. When the counselor enters the room, they all sat in a circle. Her roommates talk to the counselor, but when it was Ann's turn she put the biggest smile on her face and says everything was fine. It was at that moment that she turns into a giant Raggedy Ann doll. The counselor and the roommate run out of the door scared out of their mind. Lisa ran to the room to see what was wrong with Ann since the counselor was shaking. Lisa was shocked and scared when she saw Ann, but she couldn't turn away from her, Ann was her friend.

Ann had to hide in the closet when the roommate came to get her things. She couldn't live in her room with a giant doll. Everybody was scared of Ann turning into a giant doll, nobody wanted to go into the room to see how she was doing.

Lisa moved from her old room to live with Ann. She had to help Ann with everything that she needed. Lisa had to help her stay away from the water since now she was basically a sponge. Every day Lisa had to make sure that she doesn't stay close to the fire. She protected her emotionally when the other pass by their doors and call Ann "freak" and the "devils child". Lisa couldn't go anywhere, she couldn't get to class or even outside of the room. She was so scared that if she lives Anne alone, the other students might harm her or she might harm herself. Ann couldn't stop feeling guilty for how Lisa had to stop her life in order to take care of her. Every time Lisa is sleeping she take a moment to watch her sleep, Ann can only imagine that pain that she must be going through. Ann Felt guilty and ashamed for what she have Lisa going through, but she couldn't show or say what she feels since she has no mouth to talk just a big smile on her face that never moves. Lisa hasn't seen outside of that room ever since Ann changed. Sometimes Lisa doesn't know to react to the change. Besides the obvious she doesn't know how else to take care of Ann; she doesn't know if she gets hungry, thirsty, or sleepy.

Lisa decided to have a little decoration for Ann. She took down all of her posters down and put posters of rainbows, lollipop, and dolls. She took her sheets and replace them with colorful sheets, she wanted the room to look as happy and alive as Ann looked. She turned the room into a doll room.

Chapter 3

Lisa was in the room sitting on the bed facing Ann; she didn't know what to do, for it was getting very awkward just them sitting there. Lisa started talking to Ann about anything that comes in her mind. Even Though she didn't get an answer she still kept talking to her. While talking to Ann A student bang on their door scream "you're a freak". Lisa looks at Ann expecting an emotional reaction but instead got nothing, all she sees is a big doll with a big smile on her face. After a little while she asks Ann a question, she stared at her but no answer.

Lisa sits there and looked at Ann and starts screaming. " I can't do this anymore Ann, all you do is lay there with a big smile on your face. Every time I talk to you all I get in return is a big red smile. I don't know how you feel because you show no emotion. Why me? Why do I have to be the one stuck with you? Just like everyone is saying you are a freak and even the devil" Lisa stomps out of the room. Ann wanted to cry, and scream but she couldn't. The one person she has just walked out the door.

Now when Lisa enters the room she doesn't talk to Ann anymore, she barely looks at her. Lisa doesn't talk to her like she usually does; she doesn't even stay in the room anymore. Ann has never felt so lonely, and ashamed. She always tells herself that everything is her fault, if only she had never turned into a giant doll that shows no emotions, but a smile on her face that never moves. She looks happy but she is dying on the inside.

The next morning Lisa was coughing she looks pale. She couldn't stop coughing she looked really sick. All Ann could do was sit there and look at Lisa with a big smile on her face. When the paramedic came to get Lisa Ann had to hide in the closet. She knows as soon as they bring Lisa to the hospital when she comes back she won't last the night, she will die.

Later that day when they brought Lisa back to the room just like she predicted she didn't last the night and she died. Ann doesn't understand what is going on with her, everybody around her always dies. Even though Lisa wasn't her friend anymore and barely talks to her, she still feels bad because they were once friends. The Next morning Ann woke up and went to the bathroom, she fills the tub with water, she stands there for a minute and then lies in the water until she absorbed enough water and kills herself.

The school cleans out the room and moved some new kid's in. the school kept functioning normally. The students forgot what happen and continue with their lives. The New kids redecorate the room and throw a welcome party.
